DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1,7 & 8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hara et al (US Patent No. 5,355,689) in view Ikeda et al (US Patent No. 5,598,887).

Hara et al discloses a heat pump type air conditioner for an automotive vehicle for heat & cooling and comprising: a heat radiating inner heat exchanger (33) disposed in a duct (39) and serves as the main body of the air conditioner, a blower fan (37), a compressor (31), a three way valve (32), an outer heat exchanger (38) and connected to the inlet side of a heat absorbing inner heat exchanger (35) and an auxiliary heater (76) is disposed at an air inlet side of said heat radiating inner heat exchanger (33). In duct (39) an inner inlet (40) leads air into the passenger compartment. Furthermore, discloses an air mixing door (46) is disposed upstream of the heat-radiating inner exchanger (33) in the duct and an air mixing chamber (47) consist of a ventilating system. Hara et al, however lacks to mention a dehumidification stage of the heat pump system. Ikeda teaches an air conditioning system for a vehicle for cooling/heating and dehumidification. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the heat pump system disclosed by Hara with a dehumidification stage as taught by Ikeda for reheating air stream and removing moisture from air stream.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 9 & 10 are allowed over the prior art of record.

Claims 2-6 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
